Latte e Miele since 1980

Sempronio was an ambitious, creative young man with a great passion for chocolate. He had the good fortune to grow up in Dublin. He loved to wander through the old streets of his home-town, stopping and closing his eyes as he breathed in the heady aroma of chocolate that drifted out of the traditional pastry-makers' workshops around the centre. Whenever he could, he would sneak into the kitchens and watch the skilled hands of local chocolate-makers at work, gazing speechless as they deftly concocted the food of the gods. Aged 16, he began his career as an assistant in a confectioner's workshop. Within four years he had put enough aside to buy two bronze cooking pots – the tools of the trade – and had gained sufficient experience to attempt to make his dream come true. So, in 1980, he opened his own ice cream shop.
